Independent Market Analyst Peter Strachan has expressed the belief that there will be few 'big winners' amongst the mining company quarterly finance reports to be released soon and has highlighted the fluctuating Australian dollar as an issue of concern. He acknowledges that the gold price proved 'pretty steady' during the six months to December, adding that Catalpa and Integra Mining boast new projects amidst increasing market confidence. Landgraft notes that several companies, including Galaxy and KCGM, have elected to increase the mine life of some projects such as the Kalgoorlie Super Pit after receiving approval by Minister for Mines Norman Moore. She adds that General Manager Russell Cole has touted the move as beneficial for the wider community.
